NOVEMBER 2009 ISSUE 53

artsbark

editor's desk

Welcome to the November issue of Artsbark, this is a joint effort by Sandra and Bridget as Bridget has been away on holidays. She would like to report back that economic crisis or not, the art galleries of New York are still drawing great crowds, and it was fabulous to be somewhere where there is so much art and interesting architecture which permeates all aspects of daily life.

Meanwhile Arts Upper Hunter, led by Rebecca Fowles, hosted two more art camps through the October school holidays, as part of the ArtStart Project. The first, at Vacy, focused on circus and hip hop skills and the second at Murrurundi, on creative writing and songwriting. Participants were asked "what was the best thing about the camp". Comments ranged from: "learning new things/skills", "truly the best camp I've ever been on, good food, good relationships, good workshops", and "the people, both those who came and those who supervised. They were awesome." Most importantly they all enjoyed meeting new people and making new friends. There will be a further two camps in early December. Check our website for more information, and contact Rebecca. The ArtStart NSW Youth Arts and Skills Program is a NSW Government initiative funded by the NSW Department of Education and Training.

Another wonderful opportunity for the young people of the region was initiated by the Maitland Regional Art Gallery. The gallery received funding from Arts NSW to provide free art gallery visits, including travel and art workshops, to qualifying schools. There were 11 successful schools from the Lower and Upper Hunter region. The Broke Public School is one of the participants. Arts Upper Hunter is also currently working on a proposal to establish a youth arts network and program that would be run by youth in the area with assistance from us and funding potentially from partnerships with government and private industry. At this stage we are consulting with groups who may have an interest in participating in helping to establish the program. Please contact Bridget to find out more.

You may recall that the ABC set up a website Artpost last year, www.abc.net.au/tv/artpost/ where artists can post their work, bearing in mind that the ABC may use the website to source content for television. They are also currently actively seeking stories for 2010 for Artscape and a new program Art Nation which will replace Sunday Arts in a new format. If you have a project/story you think might be of interest please contact Jenny O'Meara at O'Meara.Jenny@abc.net.au.

Our website is also continuously changing in part due to the hard work of, Clare Tilyard, our "Connectivity" Project Officer. Clare has been very busy connecting with artists, museum and historical societies, and venues throughout our region, and she has posted this information on our website for you to access. It is not too late for you to become involved. If you are an artist, manager of a venue or committee member of a local Museum/Historical Society, the forms can be directly downloaded from the website. If you would like to know more about this project, please contact one of our offices.
